

Black-footed ferret project COMPLETE

Description

Sorry for the long delay between posts, but it's gotten surprisingly hectic over here.

I've got a few things on my plate that are keeping me busy, and some will be posted here (as well as on other sites as well), so I will keep you posted.

But, I just wanted to direct you to a project of mine that began while I was finishing up my Master's of Journalism degree. The project deals with the plight of the endangered North American black-footed ferret, a cute mammal that has been in danger for many, many years.

I decided to create a multimedia website devoted to discovering what happened to cause its classification of endangered, what is being done in the United States and Canada and what the future could hold for the magnificent animal.

Thanks to an intrepid young web-designer and all the fellow students and professors who helped me out with this project, it became something that I am immensely proud of.

So please, do go check out all the videos, slideshows, text and photo galleries I have there and learn about an animal that needs our help.

Check out: Back from the brink: The story of the North American black-footed ferret.

Category

1. Black footed ferrets
2. MRP

Date Created

June 13, 2010

Author

mrmanly2hotmail-com