

Nerd and proud

Description

It has been a while since my last post, but it has been pretty busy here with Science Online, then my entire house got sick by some sort of super-virus for weeks on end (it kept going from person to person like a carousel), but all is well now. The virus has since been eliminated, everyone is healthy and we can get back to "normal" or , what passes for normal on this blog, anyway.

I came upon a few video clips of Wil Wheaton (Wesley from Star Trek: The Next Generation and all around nerd king) talking about what being a nerd means, and how finding something you love "whether it is Doctor Who, football or science" is nothing to be afraid or ashamed of.

Give it a watch and please share this message with anyone who, at any point in their lives, have been criticized by others for liking something with a passion that others don't.

Category

1. Science

Tags

1. nerd
2. Wil Wheaton

Date Created

April 2, 2014

Author

mrmanly2hotmail-com

default watermark